Dartmouth Undergraduate Economics Research Conference

May 14th, 2022  |  Carson Hall L02

9:45 - 10:00  Welcome to the Conference
Breakfast donuts and coffee from Lou's Restaurant & Bakery

10:00 - 12:00  Student Presentations Session 1
- 10:00 - 10:20  Pranit Gupta '22, "Impact of Trade Liberalization on Female Labor Market Outcomes: Evidence from India"
- 10:20 - 10:40  Catriona Farquharson '23, "Educational Investments Across Income Groups in Response to Work Opportunities: Evidence from NREGA"
- 10:40 - 11:00  Ashwini Narayanan '23, "Impact of Contraceptive Use on Women's Labor Force Participation: Evidence from 1975 Emergency, India"
- 11:00 - 11:20  Shawdii Mehrvaran '22, "Can Trade Policy be Gendered? Assessing the Effect of Shared Gender of Heads of State on Bilateral Trade Flows"
- 11:40 - 12:00  Ben Vagle '22, "Estimates of the Welfare Effects of U.S.-China Trade Tension"

12:00 - 1:00  Lunch
Sandwiches from The Nest Kitchen

1:00 - 2:00  Panel on Careers in Economics Research

2:00 - 3:00  Student Presentations Session 2
- 2:00 - 2:20  Claire McMahon '22, "The Impact of Access to Long-Acting Reversible Contraceptives on High School Graduation Rates"
- 2:20 - 2:40  Gayeong Song '22, "Does Violence Hurt the Availability and Readiness of Healthcare?"
- 2:40 - 3:00  Archita Harathi '22 and Arjun Srinivasan '22, "Does Money Move? The Effect of Desegregation Order Dismissals on School Resource Disparities"

What is DUERC?

Dartmouth Economic Research Scholars (DERS) will host the Dartmouth Undergraduate Economics Research Conference (DUERC) on Saturday, May 14th, which seeks to encourage economic research among undergraduate students. The conference features presentations by 10 undergraduate economics students on research they have conducted through their culminating experiences. DUERC also includes an alumni panel on careers in economic research.

Organizers: Soham Maiti '23, Arjun Srinivasan '22, Genghe Zhu '23, and Archita Harathi '22

Advisor: Professor Leila Agha